Planning meeting set for cognition symposium

June 1984 will bring a special International Symposium to Gallaudet on the topic of Cognition, Education and Deafness. Because considerable independent work is underway in many universities and schools to improve the cognitive development of hearing impaired learners, it is essential to have a systematic exchange of information and findings on this topic.

Several College and Pre-College faculty have joined together as a planning group for the Symposium, in which researchers, educators and other interested persons will spend two and a half days at Gallaudet presenting papers, demonstrating model programs and discussing important issues in cognition and deafness.

An opportunity for interested persons on campus to participate in the planning process for this Symposium is scheduled for Friday, Jan. 28 from 1:30-3 p.m. At that time, members of the planning group will present an outline of the Symposium topics and themes and will describe the relevance of the topic to such fields as psychology, education, cognition research and deaf education. All interested persons at the meeting will have an opportunity to suggest detailed topics, names of individuals who should be invited to submit papers and criteria for analyzing submitted papers. Papers will be selected prior to the Symposium, printed and distributed to all Symposium participants; in this way, participants will bring to the Symposium a high level of awareness of important issues that can be discussed and explored.

Members of the Symposium planning group, chaired by David Martin of the Department of Education and Clarence Williams of the Research Division, have included Kay Meadow (Research Division), Mary Hockersmith (MSSD principal), Raymond Trybus (dean of the Research Institute), Anne Spragins (School Psychology Program), Anna Hauptman (Research Division) and Boris Bogatz (assistant dean, SEHS).

Anyone interested in attending the Jan. 28 information meeting should contact either David Martin, Education Department, x5400 or Clarence Williams, Research Division, x5030 by Monday, Jan. 24 so that sufficient space can be reserved. Refreshments will be served.

AAUW chapter forms on campus

by Mary Abrams

Two preliminary meetings of women interested in forming a branch of AAUW (American Association of University Women) on the Gallaudet campus will be held on Tuesday, Jan. 25, from 12-1 p.m. and 4-5 p.m., in the Ely Center Multi-Purpose Room. Any woman with a baccalaureate or higher degree from an accredited institution is eligible to join AAUW and is invited to attend either or both of next week's meetings.

Paula Ottinger of the Sign Communications Department has spearheaded the drive to establish a Gallaudet branch of AAUW. She sees the group as having great potential to help women at Gallaudet. It would serve primarily as a campus-wide social and support network and as a mechanism for dealing with the specific concerns of women on campus. Such matters as day care for children of Gallaudet personnel, job discrimination and medical facilities available to women on campus could be addressed and focused on through an AAUW branch.

AAUW, with a current membership of nearly 190,000, has been dedicated for more than 100 years to improvements in education and the advancement of women. It provides a strong and credible voice for women's issues in Congress and state and local legislative bodies, and maintains a permanent observer at the United Nations. Members of AAUW become part of a national network of women and through AAUW's affiliation with the International Federation of University Women share the concerns of women throughout the world.

The search continues . . .

The Gallaudet College Presidential Search Committee (PSC) continues to review applications and nominations for the presidency of Gallaudet.

The Committee will begin interviewing the selected candidates in the near future. The search is progressing in a satisfactory manner.

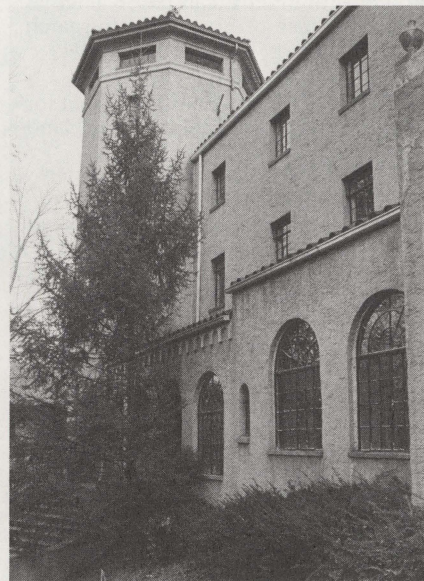

It was with much regret that the PSC received Dr. Wilson Grabill's resignation from the PSC for health reasons. Dr. Grabill is a member of the Gallaudet College Board of Trustees and serves as its secretary. Mr. George Muth, chairman of the Board, has appointed another Board member, Dr. Robert Sanderson, to replace Dr. Grabill. Dr. Sanderson has served on the Board of Fellows for Gallaudet and in 1981-82 held the Powrie V. Doctor Chair of Deaf Studies.

We would like to take this occasion to thank all persons who sent nominations to the Search Committee.

Alexander E. Patterson, Jr., Chairman
Presidential Search Committee

Workmen continue cleanup of the Main Building on the new Northwest Campus. Major renovation is scheduled to begin soon.

IDEC personnel who work at MSSD include Jim Kearney, Jacqueline Maeder, Barbara Riggs, Janice Richardson and Asha Adam. 577-72-2249.

Among Ourselves

Bill McCrone, associate professor in the Department of Counseling, School of Education and Human Services, has secured support from IBM-Japan and the University of Tsukuba to research rehabilitation practices and the integration of deaf workers in Japan.

Tom Landers, dean of the School of Education and Human Services, is serving on the Steering Committee and Program Committee of the International Council on Education for Teaching (ICET) which is planning the World Congress on Teaching, to be held in Washington in July, 1983. About 1,000 teacher educators from 50 countries are expected to attend.

Betsy Moore, a second year graduate student in the Counseling Department, will be spending spring semester in Brighton, England. She will complete a semester-long internship at the Ovingdean Hall School for Partially Hearing Children in East Sussex County, England. She will be exploring the various delivery systems of counseling and support services offered to hearing impaired people throughout England and during the Easter holiday will travel to Scotland to assist with an independent living course sponsored by the British Deaf Association.

Persons interested in counseling and support services for deaf persons in England can contact Moore at the Ovingdean Hall School for Partially Hearing Children, Greenways, Brighton, East Sussex, BN2 7BJ, England, or can contact Frank Zieziula, her faculty advisor, in the Counseling Department, x5586.

Bruce White of the English Department has a 2,700-word article in the current Silver Jubilee issue of Modern Age. The article is an assessment of Richard M. Weaver's works on rhetoric and political theory. 309-44-9834.

NIE Grants

The National Institute of Education (NIE) has announced March 15, 1983, for Major Grants preapplications and April 4, 1983, for Small Grants. Applications are for new awards under NIE's Program of Research Grants on Law and Government Studies in Education (CFDA No. 13.950).

The purpose of this program is to support research projects to investigate how legislative, administrative and judicial policies and governmental organizations affect education.

Two types of grant awards are available under this program: major grants—applications for more than $10,000 for direct costs; and small grants—applications for $10,000 or less for direct costs. An estimated $800,000 is budgeted for fiscal year 1983 to fund approximately six to 10 major grants and eight to 10 small grants.

New Year's Resolutions:

This year I will prepare my tests before the class finishes each content area.

This year I will introduce different material to explain the point everyone missed last year.

This year I will finish each class early to allow time for questions and a structured review session.

January's New Year's resolutions come during that wonderful time when vacation makes all things seem possible.

If you are a faculty member, that euphoria may carry over the second week of classes and then disappear in paper mass.

IDEC is there for the times when faculty want to put those resolutions to work and are looking for help.

The Instructional Development and Evaluation Center (IDEC) is located on the lower level of the Learning Center, at MSSD and at KDES. IDEC personnel provide instructional design and evaluation resources for the entire campus. Instructional design is "a philosophy of approaching a problem and solving it in a systematic way," says Marty Noretsky of IDEC. As resources in design, evaluation and linguistics, IDEC personnel are available to work with other faculty members to make those New Year's Resolutions come true.

"We have a variety of strategies to make instruction more effective," says Ken Epstein of IDEC. A faculty member with his/her expertise in content and the IDEC member with his/her training in alternative methods of instruction can work together to reach any educational goal.

There are two ways to obtain IDEC resources. The first is an informal walk-in service.

Through the "walk-in" service you can discuss an instructional problem with an IDEC faculty member. Together, you may:

... write your own with IDEC

- Determine ways to make your instructional materials more effective.
- Review and revise course organization or objectives.
- Determine more effective methods of evaluating student progress.
- Discuss language usage.
- Produce prototype materials.

A walk-in project is limited to up to 35 hours of an IDEC faculty member's time. All walk-in services are provided as resources are available. If your task requires more than 35 hours (as determined in discussions with an IDEC faculty member), it might qualify as a formal IDEC project.

IDEC projects are larger than "walk-ins" in scope and the application process is more formal and detailed than for walk-ins. Typical project activities include:

- Developing teaching strategies.
- Designing course activities.
- Developing tests.
- Organizing and formatting course materials.
- Making existing instructional materials more readable.
- Adapting existing materials to special student needs.
- Individualizing instruction.
- Evaluating or revising courses, programs or curriculum.
- Trying out new materials.
- Designing course units, courses, programs or curricula.
- Developing instructional materials, such as textbooks, readers, storybooks, study guides, videotapes and filmstrips.

IDEC projects at Gallaudet usually begin in the summer. They are supported by grants sponsored by the Office of the Vice President for Academic Affairs. Proposals for Pre-College projects are submitted in the spring and actual development work begins in summer and early fall. Information will be sent to all faculty regarding timelines for submission of proposals.

So if your New Year's Resolution includes your classroom, it may also include IDEC. For more information, call x5815. 577-92-6825.

Advocacy Notes

Gallaudet's Comments on proposed regulations for P.L. 94-142

by Merv Garretson

In December the College submitted its comments to the U.S. Department of Education on the controversial proposed amendments to the regulations for P.L. 94-142 (Education for All Handicapped Children Act). The position paper was developed by staff members of the Law Center with input from various campus sources. In summary, the College:

- urged retention of the current regulation which requires schools to ensure that hearing aids worn by children are functioning properly.
- supported the present regulation that residential school placement be at no cost to the parents of the child. The proposed amendment would limit cost-free service to those items listed in the IEP (Individualized Education Plan).
- expressed concern over deletion or dilution of requirements related to parent participation in the IEP process, including provision of interpreters for deaf parents at IEP meetings.

- supported a proposed new regulation requiring SEAs to identify those children who can "best be served" by a regional or state program, withhold funds from the LEA responsible for the child and use those funds to provide services in the state or regional center.
- opposed proposed changes in evaluation procedures which would reduce the use of multi-disciplinary teams, remove the requirement that the evaluation team include some person with knowledge in the area of suspected disability and delete the requirement to evaluate in all areas related to suspected disability.
- opposed the proposed amendment to permit public agencies to "establish reasonable limitation" related to the level, frequency, location or duration of related services, and the qualifications of service providers.
- shared with the Department of Education the Gallaudet College position on "least restrictive environment" interpretations of the law. The College believes that proximity of handicapped children to nonhandicapped children should not and was not intended to be the sole criterion for determining placement of hearing impaired children; in other words, Congress did not intend mainstreaming to be a goal in itself. The College supports the availability of a continuum of placement options to meet the unique needs of each handicapped child. The least restrictive environment is that which provides a free and appropriate education for the child. The Gallaudet position also recognizes the important role of special schools for the deaf and their wealth of resources and expertise.

At the end of the year the Department of Education was still reviewing some 23,000 comments received on the proposed changes. The next step in this stormy course of amending the regulations will be decided in January or February. 248-64-2636.
